NESHA PAI

ABOUT

As a first generation Indian American raised in the south, Nesha has had her fair share of facing and overcoming obstacles - dealing with racism and sexism throughout her life. She has endured mental health struggles and a personal religious identity crisis all while navigating marriage, divorce, and single motherhood.

But she credits these challenges as the catalyst for her success. Nesha opened her accounting firm, Pai CPA, in 2011 and made it her mission to empower women through hiring. Due to its unique virtual office structure (remember, this was 2011), she was able to give employment opportunities to mostly stay-at-home moms. She has great pride in owning a business that supported women and empowered business owners in their finances.

Still, as her business grew, Nesha felt her purpose to help women grow was unfulfilled. Nesha isn't just an example of the American dream, she is the embodiment of it. And she does it with style, grace and extraordinary ingenuity. Intrinsicly empowered by her own story and inspired by the stories of others, Nesha has continued to expand her expertise and reach, leading to where she is today: An impactful leader and keynote speaker who guides others to step into their power, regain their trust in the process, and live the life of their dreams.

Nesha is truly a testament to how her faith, forgiveness, and resilience transformed her seemingly insurmountable obstacles into priceless opportunity and power.

PIECE OF THE PAI PODCAST

The purpose of this podast is to interview successful entrepreneurs and dive deeper into the challenges and mistakes of business ownership, including the parts of business ownership that give them the most joy and why they do what they do. I want listeners to see that they can create the business they desire and that business ownership is possible and attainable.
